

Arrest Just What Sommers Wanted

It is a well-known fact among close associates of Robert E. Sommers that the former minister's main wish was to be charged with accepting bribes in exchange for forest management licences.

Yesterday that wish came true.

"During the past few months I have prayed over and over again that I could be charged—it is the only way to settle this thing," Mr. Sommers said less than two weeks ago.

But when the RCMP called at his home to arrest him early yesterday it was the first inclination that the former minister had of such action.

Taking the allegations out of the hands of the royal commission—where nobody was on trial—and placing them as specific charges before the courts could benefit Mr. Sommers.

As matters stood he had, in effect, to prove that he was innocent—now the onus is on the prosecution to try to prove that he is guilty—proof beyond a reasonable doubt.

The court case will deal with hard, cold facts, ruling out any expressions of opinion which might have been made during the commission hearings.

Mr. Sommers does not have to give evidence unless he wants to do so, although under the commission he could be subpoenaed and forced to take the stand. The same applies to Charles Schultz and H. W. Gray.

And the court will once and for all make a firm ruling—something that might not have been possible if the commission had gone ahead.

Russia's Offer with ICBM

Gallant Dog Digs In And Saves Mistress

CAMBORNE, England (AP)—Mark is a cocker spaniel and is a hard one to hold when he wants a run. He belongs to Mrs. Irene Berryman.

They were walking near town Thursday and Mark was straining at the leash, eager to be off.

Then the earth gave way beneath Mrs. Berryman. She found herself sliding on a slope toward an old mine shaft 300 feet deep. Mark dug in against the choking collar. His mistress' grip on his leash helped hold her until she could scratch a foothold. She crawled up and collapsed.

"We are not seeking any trouble," he said, "but we want everybody to know his limits and keep within them."

At the same time, the Red leader charged that the United States participated behind the scenes in last autumn's attack on Egypt by Britain, France and Israel.

SOME WHO DOUBT

The Soviet leader said there are still some people who doubt that Russia has an ICBM even after the launching of the two earth satellites.

"With the satellites, people see them with their eyes but do not feel them with their bodies," Khrushchev said.

"Anyway, we are ready to make them feel it."

Corn Beef Lunch in Jail Ends Fast After Unexpected Morning Arrest

Former lands and forests minister Robert E. Sommers spent most of yesterday locked in Vancouver city jail while lawyers and friends tried to raise the $7,500 bail set after he was arrested on a charge of conspiracy to accept bribes.

Bail was put up at 9:20 last night by relatives, Mr. and Mrs. John Abramo, who posted real estate.

His lawyer, James J. Proudfoot, who flew over from Victoria to arrange bail, walked out of the jail with Sommers at 9:30 p.m. The case resumes next Thursday.

Reporters at the scene reminded Sommers that in an earlier interview several days ago he had said he would welcome a full investigation. Now, it has come, what have you to say? they asked.

"Re-read that quote," was the only comment they got from Sommers.

Sommers arrived at his home at 12:22 this morning accompanied by his lawyer, Mr. Proudfoot. He had come from the Patricia Bay Airport in the airport bus and caught a taxi at the Fountain Circle.

A reporter arrived at his house a few seconds after the taxi pulled up.

WALK BRISKLY

Sommers and Mr. Proudfoot walked briskly into the house. Sommers held the front door ajar a few inches and shouted to the reporter: "You get off the property or I will call the Saanich police."

Fast-moving and sensational events in the 23-month-old case exploded here yesterday morning when two RCMP officers arrested the former provincial cabinet minister at his Obed Avenue home.

CHARGE READ

He was charged in Vancouver police court with conspiring to accept bribes from two lumber companies in return for forest management licences during the time he was minister.

Hugh Wilson Gray and Charles D. Schultz, both of Vancouver, presidents of the two firms, were jointly charged with conspiring to bribe Sommers.

LUNCH IN JAIL

Sommers ate lunch in jail as his first meal of the day.

The ex-cabinet minister, who is MLA for Rosland-Trail, did not wait for breakfast when RCMP officers picked him up at his Victoria home at 8 a.m. He shaved and then left with them.

Sommers was flown to the mainland in a seaplane.

Corned beef, mashed potatoes, cabbage, carrots, tea and bread was the jail menu.

LAUGHS, JOKES

Earlier, Sommers laughed and joked with RCMP officers who brought him from Victoria. Later as officers escorted him from RCMP station to police court his expression was stern and serious.

Mr. Proudfoot told reporters he had known the charge would be laid for several days.

Gift Appeal For Hospitals

An appeal for donations of small personal gifts to be sent to patients in provincial mental hospitals is being carried out by the Canadian Mental Health Association.

In Victoria last year, the branch collected eight cartons of gifts that were given to patients who would otherwise have been completely forgotten at Christmas.

Information about the collection is available from Mrs. E. Frankham at 3-3404.

UIC Benefits

Ottawa Aid For Jobless

OTTAWA (CP)—With growing indications of fast-rising unemployment in Canada, the government is expected to propose next week an eight-week extension in the present 16-week period in which special winter-time unemployment insurance benefits can be paid.

Labor Minister Michael Starr told the Commons Thursday the government is giving "very serious consideration" to an extension.

ANSWER SOON

"I expect to have some indication of our decision in a matter of days," he said, replying to a question by Stanley Knowles, deputy CCF leader.

Earlier, informed sources said the government likely will introduce legislation early next week to add eight weeks to the period for payment of the seasonal unemployment insurance benefits. The period would be extended before and after the present starting and ending dates of Jan. 1 and April 16.

FIGURES RISE

At another point in the Commons sitting, Mr. Starr reported a 17-per-cent rise in unfilled job applications at national employment service offices during the three-week period before Nov. 7.

He said they totalled 327,388 on Nov. 7, compared with 188,362 a year earlier. Wednesday, the labor department said there were 278,698 unfilled applications at NES offices on Oct. 17.

Mr. Starr emphasized that these are not "official" figures on unemployment, since they include an unknown number who had found jobs on their own, or who had left the labor force.

208,000 JOBLESS

The authoritative figures, he said, are those based on a bureau of statistics survey. Those figures, issued Wednesday, said that 208,000 persons were without jobs and seeking work at Oct. 19, a rise of 14,000 in a month and more than double the 98,000 unemployed a year earlier.

Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, said Wednesday a national emergency is shaping up and forecast that unemployment may total 500,000 by next March.

GOVERNMENT SWITCH

The apparent decision on seasonal benefits indicates a change in government view point. On Oct. 18, Mr. Starr said there was no intention of amending the unemployment insurance act this session.

The winter-time benefits now range between $6 a week for a person with no dependents who earned between $9 and $15 weekly during the preceding 30 weeks, and a top benefit of $20 a week for a person with a dependent who earned $37 or more a week in the preceding 30-week period.

ARTHUR MALONEY ... what unemployment?

Never Had It So Good!

REGINA (UP)—Arthur Maloney, parliamentary assistant to Labor Minister Michael Starr, last night scoffed at gloomy unemployment reports and asserted that Canada's winter-time workers have never had it so good.

"A darker (employment) picture is being painted than is justifiable," Maloney told the annual meeting of the Regina Progressive Conservative Association. "There are 123,000 more people at work than there were a year ago."

Gambling Gets Chief Down

WASHINGTON (UP)—Deputy Police Chief Clarence H. Lutz said yesterday he is quitting in April because there is a one-million-dollar daily gambling business in the nation's capital and "I can't do anything about it."

Get Behind '500 Fund', Clergy Declares; Current Need Greater Than Ever Before

Leading Victoria clergymen hailed The Daily Colonist's "500 Christmas Fund" yesterday as "a splendid idea" needed this year more than ever before.

"It gives people a chance to help those who otherwise would go without," said Rev. C. B. Smith of Glad Tidings

Tabernacle, president of the Greater Victoria Ministerial Association. "The public should really get behind it."

Very Rev. J. L. W. McLean, St. Andrew's Presbyterian, said Christmas "is a time when most people think they would like to have something special, and when a lot of people are living on a bare minimum, a little extra is an expression of the Christmas spirit."

Rev. A. I. Higgins, First United Church, said his church had "more calls for help this year than last" from unemployed and other persons and "the church benevolent fund can only go so far."

"There's a lot more unemployed and they are coming to my door daily," added Canon George Biddle, St. John's Anglican. "Little people with small pensions are having a pretty tough time."

Rev. F. E. H. James, Metropolitan United, said "there's more need this year than in any (of the five) years since I have been in Victoria, because there is more unemployment."

"Some people are just scraping bottom all the time," said Rev. Alvin Hamlin, Emmanuel Baptist. "Any little extra will always help and I think ought to be greatly appreciated."

The fund, which reached $7,365 last year, is shared equally among the 500 neediest families in Greater Victoria. Donations should be mailed to The 500 Christmas Fund, The Daily Colonist, 2831 Douglas, or taken to the Colonist offices at that address or to the downtown office at 1215 Broad.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

THE beach is cluttered with logs. In a poor country it would have been picked bare, long ago. Women and children would be gleaming chips and splinters and carrying them away in baskets.

He feels down the lagoon road in a grimy little car, peering at the tortured jumble of roots and branches and trunks to the seaward side.

He parks in a likely-looking place, pulls a swede saw from the trunk of the car, and goes scouting among the logs for a piece to cut.

Here and there people have sawn and chopped off bits of log, as finicky and well-fed beasts of prey might chew off the best parts of a carcass.

The man with the saw, who is a novice, takes comfort from the scars of clumsy work that are evident on some of the logs. Here is a cut that went crooked; another one started and never finished, and a jagged face of fresh wood marking where a cut was begun with a saw but completed with ill-tempered strokes of an axe.

Experts can identify the species of wood that burn best, but this man has no such knowledge. He wavers among the logs, and at last chooses a log that someone has been working on.

He feels a twinge of conscience because he is hi-jacking someone else's log, but soothes this feeble qualm with the thought that the next man who comes along with a saw will do the same thing.

The saw chews into the wood, spraying out damp sawdust that turns dry as the blade sinks deeper. Lazy muscles begin to ache at the unusual effort. Now that I'm beginning to come down every morning on my way to work, I'll get into better shape, the man says to himself.

He has a faint feeling of superiority over the people who only come to the beach on Sundays. Heartened by the idea that he belongs to a higher order of woodcutters than the Sunday crowd, he awards himself a rest when the saw is about halfway through.

The sea comes washing gently on the beach, grey and white under grey clouds. Far out are the silhouettes of two warships. The air smells of cold and seaweed.

The man gets back to sawing. The blade goes down more slowly, singing a rough, hesitant song. The last part seems never-ending. Pinched by his inept handling, the saw moves with difficulty through the remaining inch of wood, until the section finally creaks and tumbles off.

The man upends the chunk of log and sits on it for a minute; then rolls it up the beach, over the tangle of wood to the car, and stows it in the trunk. He cuts and packs another, and takes a sack from the car and goes gathering pieces of bark that are lying still wet on the glistening sand next to the sea. He also gathers handfuls of small sea-rounded fragments that he finds deposited in lodes, and dry chips left behind by wasteful axes, and big jagged pieces of timber that might once have been part of some old ships.

He hauls the sack of small pieces to the car and puts away the saw. Then he sits down on a log for a minute looking out to sea.

Fire spurts from the warships. Seconds later, the sounds of the guns reach shore: "Barroomp! Barroomp!" A seagull flies up in a mild panic, wheels around and settles on a jagged root, from which point of vantage he surveys the man with bright, hostile eyes.

The cavernous voice of a ship's loud-hailer utters some undistinguishable words. The man gets back in his car, turns around and drives past the ducks and gulls and cormorants in the lagoon and over the bridge toward town.

Two Cruises Certain, Others 'On the Books'

Two definite navy training cruises for Pacific Command ships and two probables were disclosed by the RCN yesterday.

HMCS Ontario, light training cruiser, will take cadets from HMCS Venture, junior officer training establishment, on a month's cruise Jan. 5.

Among ports she will visit (not all have yet been cleared through diplomatic channels) are Balboa, in the Canal Zone, Jan. 17, and San Diego Feb. 3. She will leave San Diego Feb. 6 and return to Esquimalt Feb. 10.

The Ontario is in the last stages of annual refit here now. The frigates Sussex and St. Laurent leave Esquimalt Jan. 27 and will sail to San Diego, arriving there Jan. 31. They will return here with the cruiser.

Two other cruises are "on the books," although they could well be changed, a naval official said.

One is a long jaunt with Venture cadets by the Ontario to Australia in February. The other is a cruise, by the ships of the Second Canadian Escort Squadron, to Japan.

Commission Ended

but had not known that yesterday was the day.

HIS TRADEMARK

As he and Sommers left the jail and cameras flashed Sommers continually flashed his cigarette holder, which has almost become his trademark.

Schultz was released during the afternoon and Gray in the early evening, both on $5,000 bail.

CCF opposition leader Robert called for the resignation of

Premier Bennett's Social Credit

government.

Warrants for the arrest of the three men came as a surprise development, but the government disclosed the move was planned a week ago to avoid stalling investigation of the graft allegations.

The cases against Sommers,

Gray and Schultz were adjudged until next Thursday by Magistrate Oscar Orr. The magistrate declined to consider requests that the three be released without bail. He ordered sureties of $7,500 for Sommers and $5,000 each for the other two.

"BEST COURSE"

Attorney-General Robert Bonner called the criminal charge—which carries a maximum sentence of five years—was considered the best course to make sure that allegations of corruption against Sommers are cleared up.

He indicated that other arrests

may be made in the case.

A royal commission was appointed three weeks ago to decide whether Sommers was guilty of wrongdoing.

ACTION ORDERED

The RCMP was ordered last week to begin the conspiracy action, Mr. Bonner said, when it became evident that appointment of the commission under

Chief Justice Gordon Sloan

"would be formally questioned."

Chief Justice Sloan said the criminal action means the commission has ceased to function.

OTHER ARRESTS

Schultz, president of C. D.

Schultz Company Limited, and

Gray, president of Pacific

Coast Services and Evergreen

Lumber Sales, were arrested at their Vancouver homes.

The prosecutor, Al Mackoff, said a warrant had also been issued charging Gray's brother

John, sales manager of Evergreen Lumber Sales, with conspiracy. However the warrant had not been served because

John Gray was out of town.

PALE IN BOX

Sommers, 46, his brow

wrinkled and looking pale,

smiled nervously from the prisoner's box.

Magistrate Orr noted that

Sommers returned to Victoria

a week ago after spending two-months in the United States recovering from a nervous illness. During that time, his whereabouts were secret.

HEALTH QUERIED

"I'm wondering if his health

might not make him go away again," the magistrate told

Nicholas Mussallem, Sommers'

lawyer.

"There is no question of that at all," Mr. Mussallem said.

"There is no possibility of his leaving the province for medical treatment."

"Yes, that is correct," Mr.

Sommers said in his only words during the 20-minute appearance.

LAWYERS ACT

Mr. Mussallem and the lawyers for Gray and Schultz asked that their clients be released in their own recognizance—without bail and a promise they would return for trial.

Magistrate Orr said that if the authorities had wished the release of the three men without bail they should have issued summonses, not warrants for arrest.

SUBSTANTIAL BAIL

Prosecutor Mackoff urged "a very substantial bail because the offence was not an ex-tradictable one" and because Sommers had "completely disappeared for a time."

Allegations that the former minister accepted bribes from lumber companies were first made in December, 1955, by

David Sturdy, a Vancouver

lawyer.

Sommers gave up his two

Oppenheimer May Get 'New Deal'

WASHINGTON (AP)—

Thomas E. Murray, former atomic energy commissioner, said Thursday he sees "no objection" to reopening the security case of physicist J. Robert Oppenheimer.

And, he added, if a new board said "I would not be at all displeased if he were to be re-instated."

Murray was one of the AEC commissioners who voted against Oppenheimer in a 4-to-1 decision in 1954 which barred the physicist from access to U.S.

government atomic secrets.

The majority findings against Oppenheimer came down to a conclusion that he was a loyal

American but had held himself above security restrictions, had associated with Communists and had been untruthful.

In Burma

Civil War Ends?

RANGOON, Burma (Reuters) — The surrender of a large group of Karen rebel raiders has aroused hopes that one of the world's longest destructive civil wars is ending.

For almost 10 years, the phantom force of Karen tribesmen has blown up Burmese towns, sacked villages and towns and dynamited army posts in hit-and-run raids.

Wednesday, 135 rebels surrendered to government troops at Thabon and 200 others are reported to be seeking surrender terms.

CHIEF SHOT

The Karens are reported to have shot their chief, who opposed surrender.

About 2,000,000 of Burma's 20,000,000 people are Karens, who consider themselves far different — and superior — to other Burmese. When the union of Burma was founded in January, 1948, many Karens demanded an autonomous Karen state and took up arms against the central government.

The number of villagers, soldiers and police slain by the guerrilla groups is uncounted.

'Self-Serve' Fuel Thieves Receive Fines

Fines of $75 each were levied against two men in Saanich police court yesterday who had pleaded guilty on Monday to charges of theft.

Ronald Henry Fletcher, 35, Obed, and Evans Settle, 2421 Wark, had admitted stealing $350 worth of presto-logs and briquettes from a coin-dispenser at Solid Fuels Ltd., 800 Cloverdale.

The two also pleaded guilty to charges of loitering by night near the home of Lee Kow, 3361 Oak, where they said they had planned to get some vegetables from his garden.

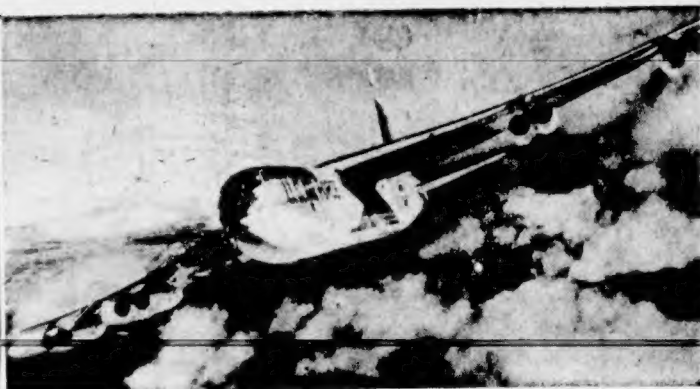

The two told police they were cold and hungry at the time.

Court was told the men stole the fuel by reaching inside a rubber trapdoor, releasing a catch and allowing two cartons of logs and two sacks of briquettes to slide out without money being placed in the machines.

Fletcher, court learned, was caught by the Chinese and held for police. Settle was picked up later.

On the loitering charge, both were placed under bond of $500 to be on probation for six months.

Also placed on probation for six months under bond of $500 was Max Starkey, 3115 Orilla, who had pleaded guilty to possession of obscene pictures and

Sudden Change of Front

STARTLING developments in the Sommers affair, involving a sudden change of front by Attorney-General Bonner, threw a bitterly contested issue into the criminal courts yesterday for decision, one way or the other. Mr. Bonner, who originally took the reverse stand, ordered prosecution to proceed against the former minister of forests and two mainland businessmen. All three men were arrested by the RCMP, brought before a police magistrate at Vancouver to hear a specific charge read, and remanded on substantial bail for preliminary hearing in due course.

It was explained by the provincial government that legal objection to the jurisdiction of the special Sloan commission of inquiry into the affair caused the volte face. Had Mr. Bonner taken this step more than 18 months ago when he was urged to do so, the truth or falsity of the alleged conspiracy to bribe a man in public office could have been settled long ago and the government eased of its intolerable position under the circumstances. It is a gain, therefore, that the substance or otherwise of the whole affair will now be assessed by a court whose jurisdiction can hardly be questioned. If a trial were ordered after preliminary hearing it would be held before a jury in the normal manner.

Unsavory Situation

DISCLOSURE of the hooliganism that takes place at the Juvenile Foster Home has shocked the mayor and other municipal officials. It will have shocked the public as well. The plain vandalism and worse of some of the older inmates makes evident what the superintendent and his wife have had to put up with over a long time. It is not surprising that they feel unable to continue unless drastic remedial measures are taken.

The home is misnamed. It is not a foster home but a stop-over place of detention while juvenile delinquents are awaiting trial in the police courts. As such, juveniles not much older than children are lumped with teen-agers barely under legal maturity age. The folly of this in view of the hardened and incorrigible bad habits of some of the latter is apparent. It is not without warrant that the superintendent fears the home to be a breeding place for crime.

This situation cannot have developed overnight. One must assume that attention has been drawn by the superintendent Yesterday's development disposed simultaneously of the Sloan commission, with its specific terms of reference. It did more than that. For any criminal prosecution to succeed in the courts it will now be the obligation of the prosecution to show that a crime had been committed and that the defendants or any of them had been party to that. The laying of the charge now awaiting a preliminary hearing automatically stops Mr. Sommers or any other defendant from being called in evidence, unless it were his wish to volunteer. In the former civil inquiry any witness could have been called to be examined under oath. However, there is no question but that the present action will settle the issue by the most direct means.

For that reason it will be welcomed, although the wonder remains that Mr. Bonner did not take this step long ago. It was the unexpected prospect of a prolonged delay while legal technicalities as to the commission's jurisdiction were argued before other tribunals that seems to have spurred the administration into seeking a once-and-for-all settlement of the matter now, before the House reconvenes late in January. There can be no reference, of course, to the subject matter of the charge now before a criminal court for inquiry.

to the unsatisfactory nature of the present system long before this. It is apparent that the municipal board of management has given only perfunctory attention to the home and in fact has been lax in its duty; otherwise matters would scarcely be in the unsavory state they are. The superintendent seems to have been left alone to bear the burden.

Certain recommendations have been made to correct the situation. These include reducing the maximum age limits of inmates, speedier disposal of the cases in court, a separate institution for older offenders, appointment of a full-time probation officer, and a general rearrangement of method. What probably is most needed is a new building altogether, built specifically for its purpose and with the kind of facilities to cope with certain types of inmates.

As matters stand, and with no blame on the superintendent who has been asked to do the impossible, this so-called foster home is no credit to municipal authorities. There has been inexcusable neglect of their responsibilities.

Once Too Often

VANCOUVER District Labor Council's protest against the transfer of the Canadian National (West Indies) Steamships fleet to Trinidad registry reflects inability or refusal to face the economic facts of life. The fact in this instance is that the Canadian sailors had priced themselves out of their jobs.

The crews of the eight ships involved had been on strike since June while the nationally owned line, already losing money at the rate of about $200,000 a year, was under demand for further wage increases which would have bumped the annual loss up to nearly half a million. The company did not feel justified in billing the taxpayers for that much; and in that view the federal government, which would have had to ask Parliament for the money, inferentially concurred by not putting any impediment in the way of a transfer permitting operation on a sounder basis.

No one likes to see Canada's almost vanished merchant navy thus depleted still further; nor would sensible persons cheer for the alternative. If this were a privately owned company it would have been put out of business long ago. As a national concern it has been kept going by what for all purposes was a government subsidy to cover the higher cost of manning ships under Canadian registry. Came the point, however, where exorbitant demands of the seamen's union could no longer be passed on fairly to the taxpayers, and there the company balked. It was a drastic and unprecedented step for a Crown company to take, but a realistic one.

If any protest with respect to this modern illustration of the old fable of the pitcher and the well is in order it lies against the union leaders whose stubbornness is open to only one interpretation: that rather than back down they would let the seamen whose interests they were chosen to protect be thrown on the beach with virtually no hope of ever getting another ship under the Canadian flag. What use is a high wage rate on paper if there are no jobs to go with it?

Interpreting the News:

Tunisian Arms Rift Explained

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

THE real issue in France's quarrel with Great Britain and the United States over Tunisian arms shipments is whether the West can afford to continue treating North Africa as a private French preserve.

France's long, bitter and indecisive struggle with the nationalist rebels in Algeria has been viewed with increasing uneasiness by her allies. Its drain on the country's economic and military potential and its adverse effects have been recognized and unofficially deplored.

But as long as the trouble was confined to Algeria, which France insistently claims as her own territory, the U.S. and British governments have discouraged spokesmen like Senator John Kennedy of Massachusetts, who urged them to intervene in the dispute.

The Tunisian arms issue introduced a new dimension. While the Habib Bourguiba regime makes no secret of its sympathy with the Algerian nationalists, it is strongly pro-Western, in marked contrast to most of the other newly-independent Moslem states.

When friction arose over border incidents involving fleeing Algerian rebels, France accused Tunisia of aiding the insurgents and suspended the arms program.

Tunisia, denying official support of the rebellion, turned to Britain and the U.S. for help. The French, claiming the sole right to arm their former protectorate, urged their allies to refuse the Tunisian request.

With a prolonged French political crisis aggravating the situation, Britain and the U.S. recognized a pattern which has cost the West the friendship of several Middle Eastern states—Western promises of assistance followed by failure to carry them out. The Russians were showing signs of willingness to give Tunisia what she needed.

Rather than force Bourguiba into a reluctant deal with the East, the two powers chose to risk French anger by giving him the small quantity of arms he had asked, accepting his assurance that they would not find their way across the Algerian border.

The resulting rift has to do with more than a comparatively insignificant arms shipment. Despite the strain on their traditional alliances and on the structure of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Britain and the U.S. were serving notice on France that something must be done about the Algerian situation.

When the first emotional reaction wears off, a French government committed to all-out war against the rebels will have to weigh its continuance against the possibility of growing isolation from France's Atlantic partners.

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

TIME magazine took note last week of a reunion in London of Dardanelles campaign veterans, and in so doing referred to Sir Winston Churchill as "the master mis-statist behind the Gallipoli debacle."

This slick news journal is constitutionally unable to refrain from barbed paragraphs but it should have paid heed to the remark of Lord Attlee, which it quoted:

"If we had had Sir Winston instead of Asquith or Lloyd George in the 1914-18 war, he would have saved a million lives... Sir Winston had the one strategic idea of the war."

Lord Attlee is a Gallipoli veteran and, as you know, was in the Churchill cabinet all through the last war. One may be excused for thinking he knows more about the Dardanelles campaign than does Time magazine.

In any case debacle is hardly the word for what was conceived as a gallant and imaginative venture. In the dictionary sense it was neither a rout nor a sudden collapse. It lasted for nine months.

Lord Attlee called it "an immortal gamble that didn't come off." One reason it didn't come off is that within three weeks of the landing at Cape Helles the mainspring of the Dardanelles conception, Churchill, was no longer at the Admiralty. Thereafter he had less influence on its success or failure than infantry officer Attlee himself, or, perhaps, P.B.I. types like your truly who merely tried to shoot as many Turks as possible.

Had it come off, also, probably there would be no Sputniks circling the globe today; for Gallipoli is one of the great "ifs" of history. The Dardanelles campaign was launched to link up with and give aid to demoralized Russian forces as well as to shorten the war. Had it succeeded there can be no doubt that Russia's subsequent political destiny would have been much different.

Had 1915 been 1942, or 1943, in fact, Gallipoli would have been all over in no time. Not because the troops of 1943 were better than the troops of 1915 but because they were better fed, better munitioned, better supported in every way. There would have been better AND guns, both essential to strength and morale and both denied the men at Cape Helles.

Were it not so tragic Gallipoli would be almost amusing. Thus a startled Sir Ian Hamilton could report being summoned to Kitchener's office, told abruptly that he was to command a force being sent to the Dardanelles, and left to wonder what it was all about. Thus the same general could write in his diary en route to Cape Helles that only two kinds of commanders would at that moment have nothing to do, one German and one British.

The former because, every single detail would have been planned, the latter because nothing had been planned.

There would probably have been no need of a military landing at all if either Horatio Nelson or Roger Keyes had been in naval command at the Dardanelles; the straits would have been successfully breached a month before. The cautious admirals of that day had some excuse, however. The loss of a battleship was deemed catastrophic instead of the normal price of admiralty it became two decades later.

There was much more to Gallipoli than this, also, even if Time magazine seems ignorant of it. The period, unfortunately, was not that of 1939-45. Whitehall was the repository of the great half-hearted. There was no cabinet unity. There was intrigue and cabal, both political and military. The war was of a new kind, immense, global and all-consuming, and few had any real idea of how to cope with it.

One of the few was Churchill. At least he had the wit to see that the blood bath of Flanders was ghastly and futile, that attrition was the negation and not the affirmation of strategy, and that the weak spot of the enemy armor might lie far from its centre.

Gallipoli was a glorious chance to cut short a nightmare and the effects of its failure have pursued the world to this day. It was certainly not Churchill's fault that the chance was not seized as it should have been.

That was what Lord Attlee meant when he wished that Churchill had been at the helm in 1915. And as against Time magazine you can take his word for it.

Soviet Earth Satellites

Debasing Scientific Achievements?

By ELISABETH BARKER, from London

THE two Soviet earth satellites can be regarded in three quite different ways. They can be regarded as instruments of scientific research. They can be seen as experimental weapons of war. They can be seen as political weapons—weapons of Mr. Khrushchev's foreign policy.

Very probably the Russian scientists who designed the two satellites were themselves interested purely in scientific experiment and in the universally fascinating problem of exploring outer space. Their success does them great credit; it proves that Russian science and technology have advanced a long way in recent years. The knowledge they have won may well help scientific enquiry, not only in Russia, but perhaps also in other countries.

In this sense the Russian scientists have made an outstanding contribution to the pioneer work which a number of nations hope to carry through during the international geophysical year.

Seen as experimental weapons of war, the two satellites are obviously of great interest but probably not of immediate importance. The successful dispatch of the first proved that Soviet Russia possessed a remarkably powerful rocket-launching apparatus; the dispatch of the second—apparently of considerably greater weight—to even greater heights, gave further proof.

For some time past Soviet Russia has been showing great sensitiveness about Western long-range striking power and missile programs and has obviously been in a hurry to catch up and, if possible get ahead. By launching two satellites with apparatus which might also be used to launch war missiles, the Soviet government has tried very skillfully to create the general impression that this aim has already been achieved.

How far this impression is founded on reality still remains to be seen. At the present moment, with two satellites still spinning around the world, it is not yet known whether the Russian scientists have solved the problem of re-entry into the earth's atmosphere. Unless the satellites can pass at enormous speed through the layers of atmosphere without disintegrating through heat, there is no proof that Russia possesses a long-range missile which can do so.

While the immediate military value of the satellites remains in doubt, their political usefulness to Mr. Khrushchev is obvious. A prolonged state of amazement, bewilderment and uncertainty in the non-Soviet world naturally offers him big opportunities. For years past he has bitterly attacked the Western powers for their supposed aim of achieving "positions of strength" from which to negotiate with Soviet Russia. He himself, however, is obviously determined to use the earth satellites to create a "position of strength"—or at least the illusion of a position of strength—from which to negotiate with, or dictate to, the West.

He may hope, too, that this will be a position from which Soviet Russia can so dazzle the nations of Asia and Africa as to draw them half blinded into the Soviet orbit.

The simple fact is, however, that according to Western experts the launching of the Soviet earth satellites has not made any real change in the balance of military power between the West and Russia. The West has its own missile development program and it is not true that, as Mr. Khrushchev has claimed, bomber aircraft are now out of date.

Even one of his own experts disagrees with him on this point. It was only two months ago that General Pokrovsky, professor of technical sciences, remarked that the intercontinental missile could not replace other bomb carriers, particularly aircraft which, unlike missiles, could manoeuvre through defences.

Misused by Mr. Khrushchev as political weapons, the Soviet earth satellites may well prove to be weapons of deception. Many people, both inside Russia and in the free world, will regret that a genuine scientific achievement should be debased in such a way.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

IT is no longer much use, in several lines of business, to try to get in touch in our big cities with anybody at the executive level after 4 o'clock in the afternoon. They have already left for home, to beat the traffic.

Not only is the five-day week shrinking to the four-and-a-half day week, as you can see on any holiday highway by Friday noon; but the eight-hour day is shrinking to something less. A traffic student tells me that not only has the pre-5 o'clock swarm vastly increased in the past five years; the post-5 a.m. traffic has also swelled out of proportion. This may largely be due to intelligent staggering of work hours in many businesses. But he suspects that an increasing number of businessmen are working a seven or even six-hour day. And finding it sufficient.

"Everything else," he says, "has been speeded up by technical advances in recent years. Why not the techniques of business?"

One of the things that has not been speeded up by technical advances in recent years is the business of getting home by motor car. Almost in inverse ratio to the increase of horse power, size and comfort that the motor industry adds to its product, the efficiency of motor cars declines, due to traffic. We owe much to the motor car. Maybe the next thing we will owe it is a two or three-hour day and a couple of days week.

That, or else we will all move to the country, and the centres of business will be scattered prettily across the far pastures, here and there.

Fun, Fact and Fiction

Educators predict that it will become more and more difficult to get into university in the future. On the other hand, thanks to progressive education it's easier to get out of high school.

Modern appliances make life easier in the home; also more exciting, as we wake up each morning to wonder which repair man to call first.

Easy Doesn't Do It

(From The Ottawa Journal)

ANTONIO TREMBLAY, the enterprising entrepreneur who for years burnt midnight oil in luring Ottawa burrito to his cultural attractions and who now has the odd experience of seeing sellouts, comes in to say he shares this paper's concern about the listlessness of Canadian democracy.

"Can you get these thoughts into your paper somewhere?" he says:

"Easy doesn't do it. Everything comes to him who works, not waits. Making life soft for people makes people soft for life."

Come in again, Mr. Tremblay.

Letters to the Editor

Ask the Voters

The chance to take the "politics" out of the whole amalgamation issue seems to have been lost by not asking the people if we are in favor of spending some money on an impartial survey.

The advantages are obvious. It would be inexpensive. If defeated, possibly no money would have to be spent on temporary buildings. Something permanent could be done. Also no more money or time would be expended on the question.

If such a vote passed, an inquiry would have to be carried out regardless of the views of next year's reeve and council.

The whole question should be settled by sane, careful, forward-looking, and open discussions after the people have been polled on their wishes. During these many years of debate the public has never been asked how it feels on the matter either in Saanich or Victoria.

It seems to be taken for granted that Victoria is waiting to fall into the arms of Saanich. How do we know this? Have Victorians ever been asked directly? Elected representatives propose but eventually the voters dispose. Why not consult the ones who will have to decide eventually anyway?

HAROLD TODD.

Dogs on the Beaches

On the front page of the second section of the Nov. 20 Colonist you quote Mr. W. H. Warren as saying "Mr. Warren also suggested that owners keep dogs on the beaches, because big dogs often knocked down or frightened small children." This should read (I am told by your city desk) off the beaches and not on the beaches.

Surely it is time that something drastic is done about this? Such a wonderful job has been done at the Willows Beach, but last summer on many occasions I heard a lot of irate complaints about dogs running around at large on the beach, not only barking incessantly and frightening small children, but rendering the beach unfit to sit upon.

I understand that in Vancouver dogs are not allowed to roam at large on beaches, and that the question has been approached from a health point of view. Perhaps something may be done by next summer in this city.

I love animals but, like children, they should be kept in their place.

Provincial Police

Further to my letter to you on the subject of the former B.C. Provincial Police in connection with the centennial celebrations, I intend to mention the name of Mr. W. C. Morsby, QC, who with his father had close connections with the provincial police from the earliest days of the history of this province. I also think that ex-Inspector Cecil Clark would be in a position to give useful information concerning the history of the force.

Chance for the Unions

Local union members could, for $1 each, launch the $100,000 senior citizens' housing project and are being urged to do so for the centennial year (1958). It would be a good thing insofar as public relations are concerned, because labor is regarded in some quarters as being quite selfish.

In a practical sense it will create work, stimulate business and in the end may turn out to be a refuge for some of its sponsors; and be altogether a permanent and useful monument to manifest the good faith which motivates the trade union movement here in Greater Victoria.

HARRY F. LEGGETT,

1560 McRae Avenue, Victoria, B.C.

Strange Gratitude

The destruction of British monuments in India described in a recent issue of the Colonist was disgusting, showing an appalling lack of decency for all the benefits received through India's association with the British Empire. What a demonstration of gratitude to a country that handed her back her freedom after bestowing innumerable benefits on her. The rajahs and the north of India had, I should imagine, very little to do with this.

Myself and my family have been associated with India for over a hundred years, so I speak with regret from experience.

Patient Poisoned In Doctor's Office

HOUSTON, Tex.—Mrs. Margaret Van Alstine, 67, who went to a doctor to find out whether she had diabetes, was given a dose of deadly sodium cyanide by mistake yesterday and died writhing on the floor.

Mrs. Emily Nash, 46, who had been Dr. Joseph West's laboratory technician since 1928, gave Mrs. Van Alstine the poison. She said she mistook the cyanide for a glucose mixture.

Dr. West gave the woman an injection of adrenalin and tried to revive her, but the woman died a few minutes later.

"It's a tragic thing... a case of mistaken identity," Dr. West said.

The medical examiner's office returned a verdict of accidental death.

Nine-Year-Old Girl Loots Eight Homes

NEW YORK (UP)—A "very cute" nine-year-old girl with a police record has admitted the systematic burglaries of eight homes in the Flushing section of New York.

The girl, whose technique was for a much older professional, used the money to buy toys, clothes and candy. She committed her last burglary when she got "the urge" on the way home from the psychiatrist.

DARK HAIR

Police did not identify the youngster, a "very cute" girl with dark hair, because of her age. They said she told them she had netted several hundred dollars in her excursions into crime.

The girl is one of 12 children of a gardener. Her parents work during the day, police said. The girl first was arrested at the age of six when she was caught burglarizing a house and was recommended for psychiatric treatment.

SIMPLE SYSTEM

Police said the girl's system was simple. She would ring the doorbell of a house. If the house was empty she would enter through unlocked doors or by ripping screens.

She was caught by a housewife when she returned to a previously burglarized house for which she had found a set of keys.

The girl was turned over to children's court.

JACK CRUMP
Whose Statistics?

Victoria 'Very Well Served' By Present Arrangement

Economic factors were the prime reasons why Victoria was not included in Canadian Pacific Airlines plans for a second trans-continental air service to compete with TCA.

CPA spokesman Jack Crump said yesterday it was felt that Vancouver Island was very well served with air service to the mainland at present with 17 return flights a day and up to 20 on weekends.

ANSWER TO CHAMBER

He was answering criticism from Victoria Chamber of Commerce and other officials who spoke out strongly against Victoria being omitted from CPA plans for a second cross-Canada service.

The CPA application for permission to operate the service will be filed with the department of transport in Ottawa shortly. "We assessed the traffic potential in various centres and areas and then tried to work out a system of routes whereby we can give these centres better service," said Mr. Crump.

LONG-HAUL PLAN

"We felt the best way of getting into the trans-continental field was on a long-haul basis," he added. "In most cases the areas linked on a short-haul basis are very well served."

Mr. Crump said that the company planned to use DC6Bs on the proposed new route if the application is granted and that these aircraft were "economically unsound" for short hauls such as between Victoria and Vancouver. "They wouldn't have time to get their wheels up before they were there," he said.

FAT BAY INADEQUATE

In addition Patricia Bay airport was inadequate for this type of aircraft although the condition of the runways at the present time had no bearing on CPA's decision.

Mr. Crump said his company was not equipped to operate a shuttle service between here and the mainland.

"I think Victoria, if it grows to a position in population where it would warrant a service to the east, by-passing Vancouver would make a lot more sense," he stated. "It's obviously impracticable at the present time."

WRONG STATISTICS

The CPA official took issue with remarks made by Chamber of Commerce president Hugh Stephen and publicity bureau commissioner George I. Warren.

Mr. Stephen said that if CPA was not proposing service to and from Victoria the company was flying in the face of statistics.

"Maybe we're flying in the face of his statistics but we are not flying in the face of ours," said Mr. Crump.

OBJECT: PROFIT

And he added that he could not agree with Mr. Warren that there was sufficient volume of traffic to justify two competing services between Victoria and Vancouver.

"We are going to try and operate a service we feel we can make money on," he said. "If we could see a decent setup for Victoria we would certainly be after it."

Wolves Whistle While She Works

SHEFFIELD, Eng. (AP)—A tax valuation court granted shapely, 31-year-old Mrs. Mildred Barker a cut of £2 a year in her real estate tax Wednesday because of "wolves."

Mrs. Barker said the "wolves" are the male employees of an engineering works a few yards from her home. She testified she draws wolf whistles "when I hang out the laundry, when I wash the steps and when I sunbathe in the summer."

She argued, and the tax court agreed, that this lessened the value of the house.

Home Burns

Helpless Mom Sees Tots Die

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UP)—Three young children were burned to death near here yesterday as their 19-year-old mother watched helplessly.

The victims were identified as Diana Joan 5, Wayne 3, and John Edward 1, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Jeffries.

Mrs. Jeffries, who is pregnant, had gone next door to use the telephone, returned to find the three-room frame house in flames with the children inside. A neighbor had to restrain Mrs. Jeffries, who was hysterical from trying to rush into the flaming house after her children.

CHARRED BODIES

The charred bodies of the children were found in two rooms. One body, apparently that of the girl, was found at the kitchen door, indicating she was trying to escape. The other two bodies were found in the bedroom.

Mrs. Jeffries was taken to a hospital in a state of shock. Her 23-year-old husband, who had returned home from work, was in a state of near-collapse.

Firemen said the blaze apparently was caused by a defective flue.

Dad Backs Over Baby

BRANTFORD, Ont. (UP)—A horrified mother yesterday saw her husband's truck back over their three-year-old daughter, Cheryl. The child died instantly.

Mrs. Jack Williams, the victim's mother, said she shouted to her husband when the child dashed into the path of his truck but he was unable to hear her.

Six-Day Shopping Fight Gets Hotter

Efforts of the Victoria Six-Day Shopping Week Committee to obtain from the provincial government a six-day shopping week throughout the year may not be taken lying down by Victoria member firms of the B.C. Division of the Retail Merchants' Association.

A spokesman said yesterday the RMA group "is arranging a meeting at the beginning of the week so we can decide what action should be taken to make sure the government knows the Six-Day Shopping Week Committee represents a minority of the merchants in town."

Council decided last June to try to determine the opinions of merchants before taking any action in support of a year-round six-day shopping week, and City Clerk M. F. Hunter was instructed to prepare and send out a questionnaire in co-operation with the opposing groups. But the two sides were unable to agree on the wording

By Jimmy Cannon

SOUTH BEND (NANA)—It is a good deal for Bob Williams, whose father drives a coal truck. Notre Dame buys his athletic skills. The fee is an education, and Williams believes the price is right. It flatters him, because he is conspicuous. All Notre Dame quarterbacks become famous but Williams knows that every Saturday of his life will not be like this one. You must take more than a knowledge of football with you after you have given a college four years dedicated to a game.

First of all, when the Notre Dame coach gets an education. Football is secondary. Maybe, with me, it's also a personal challenge. Up to my freshman year in high school, I was small and chubby. There's the personal angle out there. Now, competing against the best in the nation, it's you against the other fellow. It's like life.

Williams, tall and spare, carries his 195 pounds gracefully. We sat in an alcove of the athletic department during the lunch hour. It was the only leisure time he had between classes.

"I played baseball and basketball in high school," explained Williams, who comes from Scranton, Pa. "I had to give them up. I use the off-season to catch up. But I'm glad I have the ability to play football. I had a few offers of straight scholastic scholarships from other schools but I chose a football scholarship."

"Why?" I asked.

"Football players," Williams said, "in my opinion, seem to be able to handle themselves better. I mean, comparing them with other students. The football player can take the breaks. He has his fun, but he also has time to study. He can meet new friends quicker than the other type."

Both Coach and Player

The quarterback is a coach as well as a player. He calls the plays and runs the team on the field. He must be part of the squad but his authority makes him a special man.

"I think it's the most strenuous position on the team," said Williams. "You have to think about what 10 other men will do and you have to fire up the team's confidence. If you lack confidence, they're not going to have it. It's hard to explain—how to give them confidence. It's coming right out with it in the huddle. Giving them the play and letting the fellows know it's going to work. Once you start stuttering, the whole team will feel it."

They are a lot alike—Terry Brennan, the young Notre Dame coach, and his quarterback. This poised kid seems older than 20.

"One thing about coach Brennan," said Williams, "he very seldom sends in plays. He likes the quarterback to handle the team while he's in there. It's good for the quarterback."

Williams isn't a great quarterback as they measure such Notre Dame all-Americans as Paul Hornung, Ralph Gaudetti, the original Bob Williams, Johnny Lujack, Angelo Bertelli, Frank Carideo or Harry Stuhldreher. But he is steady and calls plays intelligently. There was some doubt about him until this year's Army game, but panic didn't influence his decisions as Notre Dame fell behind in their most important game.

"When you're losing," Williams said, "you have to push them harder. I just told them we were the better team. I knew we were going to win when Nick Pietrosante ran 65 yards from scrimmage. I don't think we could have been beaten by Army after that."

He Must Do It Alone

The quarterback must do it alone.

"You can't allow anyone to run you," said the junior who might be an assistant coach advising a confused player. "Of course, linemen come back to the huddle and tell you different things about the opposing team. You have to take it for what it's worth. You might try it or you might not. It's up to you. The only one who talks in the huddle beside the quarterback is when someone notices something different."

The option play, of course, is the most difficult one the quarterback calls. He gives them a play and, because he notices a flaw in the defence or thinks they have anticipated what he has decided, he switches after leaving the huddle.

"It's tough," Williams said, "but it's also the most effective if it's right. I'd say we run eight to 14 options a game. They have worked very well so far."

Notre Dame's quarterback last year was Paul Hornung, who made all-America and was the most publicized football player in the country.

"Were you worried about stepping into Paul's job?" I asked.

"Tension, you mean," said Williams. "I don't know. If there is, I don't feel it. I'm glad I had the opportunity to play behind him. He was a great quarterback. But I'm not thinking about being another Paul. I'm thinking about Williams."

He depressed Williams when he was put out of the game with Pitt after three plays in the second half for fighting with Dick Scherer.

"That's the worst thing ever happened to me," he said. "It was like letting the team down when they needed me. We were behind, 7-6. It generally takes a half before you figure out the plays you need on the offense. I think I had them figured and then, the first thing I knew, I was on the bench."

NHL Players' Association Outlines Chief Proposals

TORONTO (CP)—Jim Thomson, one of the main organizers of the National Hockey League Players' Association, outlined a history of the association Thursday before the Ontario labor relations board.

Hearing opened on an application by the Toronto Maple Leafs players to have the association certified as bargaining agent, Thomson, a defenceman, last year was with Toronto and was sold to Chicago. He is secretary of the association.

Maple Leaf Gardens Limited, opposing the motion, filed a list of 31 players under contract.

Eighteen of them—all the members of this year's team—signed the application dated Nov. 5. The other 13 players are with teams in the American Hockey League.

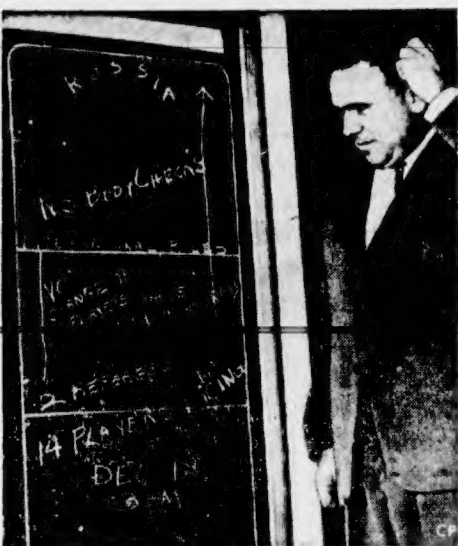

Two of the AHL players played last year for Toronto and are included in the list of 16 Leafs that originally joined the association.

The association's proposals include three main points:

1. A $7,000 minimum salary. Now there is no formal minimum though most teams recognize $6,300.

2. Adjustments in the pension plan. The players want stronger representation on the plan's board of governors, a study of the plan and contributions to it by owners or a share of the income from television games.

The board now includes five members chosen by the owners. Two are players. The plan's funds include $300 a year from

Rule Problems

A blackboard full of problems confronts Sammy Pollock, head of Montreal Canadiens' farm system, as he studies some of the international hockey rules his Ottawa-Hull Junior Canadiens and the Moscow Dynamos will use in their exhibition game Dec. 1 in Montreal. Dynamos will play by international rules, which favor less checking and more passing, in all seven games of their Eastern Canada tour, opening today against Whitby Dunlops.—(CP)

Chicago Eyes Soviet Centre But Amused Reds Veto Deal

TORONTO (CP)—Russians are sorry, but Veniamin Alexandrov, who is supposed to be some shakes as a hockey player, won't play for the Chicago Black Hawk organization. The 18-year-old centre ice star can't accept money for playing hockey.

That was the official Russian reply Thursday to a move by the Hawks who put the good-looking blonde player on the National Hockey League negotiation list. His name was placed on the list Wednesday by Chicago scout Bob Wilson.

VASC Enters Mainland Gala

Victoria Amateur Swimming Club will send a team of 18 swimmers to Vancouver Saturday to compete in the invitational gala at the Crystal Pool. Sponsored by the Dolphin Swimming Club, the gala has attracted teams from all parts of the Northwest. Victoria Flying Y Swimming Club is the other city entry.

Victoria Amateur Swimming Club team follows:

stop Chicago representatives from signing Alexandrov. "I just happen to know that it won't do them any good."

MEET DUNLOPS

This little by-play came just 36 hours before the Russians open their seven-game exhibition tour of Ontario and Quebec cities at Toronto tonight.

Thursday they held a soccer workout at Varsity Stadium and a hockey practice at Maple Leaf Gardens, much easier than their 1½-hour warmup on Thursday afternoon, just a few hours after arrival by plane.

Meanwhile, elaborate plans are being made to make the Russians feel at home when they open their exhibition series against Whitby Dunlops.

Just as they do in games in Europe, the players will line up on their blue lines before the game and then skate to centre ice to exchange souvenirs. Playing-coach Sid Smith of the Dunlops will present captain Nikolai Sologubov, at 33 the oldest player on the visiting club, with a small cup and in return will receive a pennant from the Russians.

The Royal Regiment band will play God Save the Queen and the National Russian anthem and the Russians, who beat Canada in the 1956 Olympics, will try to show a sell-out crowd of nearly 13,000 that they must be taken seriously when Whitby represents Canada in the world amateur championships at Oslo next February and March.

Saanich Hoop

Arrow Furniture will host Sooke in a senior "C" men's league game tonight in the feature of a three-game Saanich and Suburban Basketball League card at Brenwood Community Hall.

Brentwood and Colwood teams clash in midweek girls' and midweek boys' action in earlier games. First game starts at 7 p.m.

Colin Shifted to Defence As Egan Cracks the Whip

Victoria Cougars, at a low point of a disappointing and dismal Western Hockey League season, made one big lineup switch yesterday as coach Pat Egan cracked the whip in an effort to shake up the Islanders for Vancouver.

The fiery Egan, repeating his warning that "I'm just not going to go any longer with some of the players we have unless there's improvement," moved Colin Kilburn to defence as a partner for rookie Warren Back, and switched defenceman Neil Bullock to a forward line with Ed Droghda and Doug Macculley.

SPECIAL MEETING

In other developments yesterday during rugged morning and afternoon workouts, Egan had a special meeting with two players who were under fire for Wednesday night's performance against New Westminster, and he announced that Kilburn will take over as club captain from defenceman Carl Kaiser.

"The honeymoon's over as far as this club is concerned," Egan stated yesterday. "The bell's been tightened a couple of notches and there have been a few do's and don'ts laid down."

Victoria's defensive weakness, which was again evident in a 4-3 overtime defeat at the hands of the Royals Wednesday night, prompted Egan to try Kilburn on defence. Egan also hopes that by moving Bullock to an attacking unit, he will get an improved performance from Neil.

Egan, serious about making changes after expressing disappointment and disgust in the manner in which the Cougars handed Royals the points Wednesday, said:

"I don't like to say anything more about deals because the fans soon get tired of talk if nothing happens."

But he indicated that negotiations, which have been going on all season, have almost been completed for two players, and the Cougars hope to announce player help soon.

KILBURN MARKED

Just how effective the Cougar shakeup will be for tonight's game remains to be seen. But one thing is certain. Kilburn will be a marked man at Vancouver tonight and the Cougar manager will have a better chance of retaliation now that he has been shifted to defence.

A Vancouver newspaper report said yesterday that Canuck coach Art Chapman has ordered his players to pay particular attention to Kilburn tonight.

"Every time we play that Victoria club, one of our players gets marked up after a clash with Kilburn. How he gets away with his high sticking and jabbing, I'll never know. But it appears we'll have to look after the situation ourselves," Chapman said.

"Our club can play it any way the Cougars want it," Chapman continued. "Kilburn is usually the fellow who sets the mood. Any way he wants it, we'll be ready. I'm getting sick and tired of having that guy come over here to get our goats."

Aussies, Americans Appear Set In Selections of Tennis Teams

If the first stages of the South Australian tennis championships can be used as a gauge then it is fairly definite who will play doubles for Australia and the United States in the Davis Cup final in December.

America will go with the aging combination of Gardnar Mulloy, 44, of Miami, and Vic Seixas, 34, of Philadelphia. Against the veterans Americans Australia will send Mervyn Rose and youthful Australian champion Ashley Cooper.

Both teams made their debut in the tournament with impressive victories, although against rather second-rate competition. Mulloy and Seixas defeated Dennis Rowe and Rex Leach of Australia, 6-3, 6-1, 6-2, while Cooper and Rose downed another Australian team, Frank Groman and Bruce Gulley, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3.

DELAIED: The National Football League Players' Association has postponed until the day after the league's next meeting an anti-trust action against the NFL, demanding damages of $4,200,000. NFL commissioner Bert Bell asked the delay, saying he thought club owners would agree to the association's demand for recognition, pay for exhibition games, and protection for injured players, at the meeting Dec. 2.

JOHN HENDERSON, goaltender for Whitby Dunlops, was taken to hospital last night with a possible broken kneecap following an accident in practice. American-born Carl Wetzel will likely replace Henderson in the nets for tonight's game against Moscow Dynamos.

TOE BLAKE of Montreal Canadiens says he is considering putting Donnie Marshall on a line with Henri Richard and Dick Moore to replace the injured Maurice Richard.

DEFENCEMAN JACK BLONDE has been lost to Boston Bruins for at least a week with an injured foot.

STRIKES BACK: Judge Allan Fraser, much-maligned commissioner of the Big Four Football Union, told Montreal reporters yesterday that his lack of power to deal with club executives is an absurdity and needs correction. He also stated he must have more power if he is to get anywhere with his job.

HAI PATTERSON has been named "player of distinction" of Montreal Alouettes for an unprecedented third straight year.

GARY PLAYER of South Africa came from behind yesterday to defeat Peter Thomson of Australia, 2 up, and win the Australian Professional Golf Association championship.

NEW YORK YANKEE pitcher Tommy Byrne has indicated that he may retire from baseball.

LOS ANGELES DODGERS and San Francisco Giants will play before their new fans nearly every day for the first three weeks of the 1958 National League schedule. Giants play 21 of their first 25 games at home, while the Dodgers are at home for 18 of their first 21 games. Giants

Emotional Soccer Disturbs Official

HARROGATE, England (Reuters)—Soccer players who hug and kiss their goal scorers the way European players do have upset Britain's soccer association secretary.

Before kicking off at an army game here, Sir Stanley Rous told 500 cadets:

"These ideas have crept into football since we began to play continental teams. We have copied some of their emotional style of expression."

"That is not the British method. I do not like to see footballers hugging and kissing a colleague who scores a goal."

Dairy Queen's Win On Clark's Basket

Dairy Queen Eds, rated by many as the team to beat in the Senior "B" Men's Basketball League, made their first start of the season last night at Central Junior High School and had to come from behind for a 40-38 victory over Morrisons.

Veteran Johnny Clark scored the winning basket with 38 seconds left in the game to cap the rally, after the Eds had left the floor at half time trailing 21-16.

Charlie Boyd scored 14 points in lead the Eds and Clark netted 11. Morrisons, who looked like a much improved club in going down to their third straight defeat, were paced by Jim Moody with 11 points.

In last night's other league action, Victoria College Vikings, playing without ace centre Bob Tomlinson and guard Ed Kowalyk, defeated Dickinson & Dunn, 47-42.

Justice Reigns Triumphant...

Decent, Honest, Heroic Rasslers Always Win

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)—Good guys always win and bad guys always lose—or almost always—and thus it is nice to reflect today that rasslin' justice still reigns triumphant.

This fact was driven home, and into the blundered skull of a medicine man of the mat named Dr. Jerry Graham, during the latest physical culture extravaganza at Madison Square Garden.

The good doctor, being a

"baddie," had to visit a sawbones himself.

Seems that he got out of line and ran into an outraged Latin named Antonino Rocca and (b) a riot.

Us red-blooded rasslin' fans see our clean-rasslin' heroes get the bad end of it every once in a while. It makes our blood boil. One of our set, a dynamic lad known only as "Hat Pin Mary," used to take matters into her own hands and chapeau spike and the "baddies" were always sorry, I'll tell you, when she hove into view of the apron. So this here now Doctor Graham brought it all on himself the other night at the Garden when he stepped out of line and began to bust our pal Antonino with villainy vim and vigor. Rocca stood it just about as long as any clean-living, decent, honest, heroic rassler could. Then he takes the doctor and busts his head up against the ring post real good, as any clean-living, decent, honest, heroic rassler would have.

The doctor's type B started to run down his villainy kisser and it sure excited all of us rasslin' fans who believe that clean-living, decent, honest, heroic rasslers ought to win every time anyhow.

The first thing you know, us fans was throwing bottles and chairs and a few snook punches here and there and it was great fun until the gendarmes figured even rasslers who aren't clean-living, decent, honest and heroic got a right to some protection.

By this time, fortunately, the doctor had got his come-uppance, anyhow, so it was okay. And you can bet that it was a real lesson to the doctor about how not to go around villainously betting clean-living, decent, honest and heroic rasslers.

It took those duseks a long time to learn the same lesson. There was one night that one of our clean-living, decent, honest and heroic rasslers and he won. But not for long.

As he walked out under a balcony, a fan piled up five folding chairs and dropped them—smacko—right on his villainous noggin. He didn't rassle for several weeks.

Which just goes to show you that maybe you don't believe even the clean-living, decent, honest and heroic rasslers are on the level. But us fans are, and you can bet your last dropkick on that.

And the "baddies" are going to be awful cautious around here for a while, anyhow. Because, as I said, good guys always win and bad guys always lose. Or almost always, anyhow.

Excitement Boils Over in Edmonton; Inspired Bombers 16-Point Underdogs

EDMONTON (CP) The football pot that began bubbling last Saturday night when Winnipeg Blue Bombers upset the favored Edmonton Eskimos 19-7 in the first game of the western football final, was boiling over in Edmonton Thursday.

Edmonton fans were in a festive mood all day Thursday at the stadium, where the Eskimos were expected to handle season ticket holders. Public sale starts this morning.

The green and gold colors of the Eskimos turned up everywhere Thursday as cheering supporters arrived at work sporting huge yellow scarves and yellow and red hats.

Victoria fans can hear a play-by-play account of Saturday night's game on KVMX, Vancouver, starting at 7:30 p.m. Pre-game interviews begin one-half hour earlier.

Edmonton Stadium was the most excited crowd in the city, but the faithful particularly, the Eskimos, who saw the game was something else. At the press display put on by the Eskimos.

Victorians Can See Grid Classic on TV

TORONTO (CP)—The Grey Cup football game here Nov. 30 will be shown live on television screens from the Atlantic coast to the Pacific, the CBC said yesterday.

The CBC said it has arranged with the American Broadcasting Company to carry the game by microwave over its channels in the Maritime provinces. Arrangements also have been made to bring the game to viewers in Vancouver and Victoria.

Four Alberta stations will join the CBC microwave network to complete a 31-station link stretching from Halifax to Victoria.

The announcement said ABC has delayed network service to its east-coast stations to permit the CBC to purchase facilities for the game.

The game will start on channel 2 at 9:30 a.m. (PST) and will be repeated on Dec. 1 starting at 12:30 (PST).

CHENAINES, B.C. — Reeve C. A. Bennett, president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, said Wednesday he had accepted an invitation from Mayor Bennett to accompany him to Ottawa.

The reeve will be part of the B.C. delegation to the federal provincial conference to be held Monday and Tuesday.

He said the invitation was an indication of the important place local government occupies in the development of B.C.

WITH MEN WHO CAN'T BE VAGUE

Most men continue to use and develop Canada's northern whisky. It's not just a drink, it's a way of life. It's a way of life that's been passed on for generations. It's a way of life that's been passed on for generations. It's a way of life that's been passed on for generations.

Perhaps that's why you find Haig & Haig in the picture with men who can't be vague. In ordering Scotch whisky, they naturally name the brand they know through experience to have singular virtues... the original Scotch flavour and gentleness that in 1927 set the standard for all to follow.

Experts Demand Probation Officer

Use Idle Men, Gear For Roads—Chamber

Vancouver Island Chambers of Commerce have come up with a suggestion to the provincial government to ease unemployment and put idle men and machinery in the forests to work.

Build new roads or improve existing routes by using road-building equipment owned by the forest industry and currently in storage due to the business slowdown.

"In view of layoffs in the logging industry and the amount of road-building equipment laying idle in the forests, we believe this would be an excellent opportunity for the government to co-operate with industry to build roads and ease unemployment," they said.

GLEN HAMILTON
... backs mayor

Mayor's Plan Backed

Two men directly and actively concerned with work among the city's juveniles yesterday endorsed Mayor Percy Searns' plan to correct "jungle" conditions at the Juvenile Foster Home near Oak Bay Junction.

They were Glen Hamilton, executive secretary of the Community Welfare Council, and David E. Woodworth, director of the Family and Children's Service.

FULL-TIME JOB

Both endorsed particularly the plan made by Mayor Searns to employ a probation officer on a full-time basis, entirely divorced from the city police department.

"This they expressed as no reflection on that department or its officers. In so many ways about good work, they said, but the probation work should be quite separate.

"A probation officer," they said, "must maintain constant contact with his charges, to try to direct them into better channels of life.

"How is it possible for in-stances for Juvenile Officer Woodworth to go to his addition to his regular work?" will be in do is make a periodic check.

Mr. Woodworth would go a step further. He advocates a full-time probation staff, directly responsible to his superior, the mayor.

SHOULD SUIT CAUSE

Responsibility of this staff would also be to get into the courts in cases of delinquency in order to see that the courts are kept informed of the progress of the case and to see that the courts are kept informed of the progress of the case.

In all cases, said Mr. Woodworth, the probation staff should suit and not the cause but the cause of the crime.

LACK OF LOVE

"First is a congenital or post-natal physical or neurological condition such as mental retardation or psychomotority. This can occur in any family, at any level of society.

"Second chief factor is inherited, and it is a condition to be treated, rather than one to be punished. It is a condition to be treated, rather than one to be punished.

GROUPS DIFFER

With proper care, said Mr. Woodworth, children in the latter group could, after the first group, be placed in a different group, but for them the answer was not always a legal one.

The real problem came when both groups were present in a single child.

To a degree, the juvenile home offered help in solving these problems.

There was need for a place in which juveniles might be housed while a cure was sought for their problems, and when the home itself was not fit to be the right place.

Discussion as to who should go to the home was not held, but it was one of the main topics of the full-time probation staff.

In the words of a document in Mr. Woodworth's office, the juvenile home should be an institution for the detention and treatment of emotionally disturbed juveniles whose behavior is regarded legally as delinquency.

QUALIFUM BEACH. An annual taxpayers' meeting will be held Wednesday in the town hall, R. H. Hodgson, municipal clerk reports that to date 35 per cent of payable taxes have been received. At a recent meeting, the village council approved the spending of up to $4000 in 1958 on recreational projects such as boulevarding of municipal roads. A request for a municipal water line to the cemetery was approved and the matter will be investigated by the council.

$1,500,000 Room

Strikers May Stop Building

Construction of a $1,500,000 room at MacMillan and Ross's pulp mill at Hartney may be stopped by pickets of striking pulp and paper workers.

H. L. Hansen, spokesman for the two unions on strike, said that the men employed by the Ross-MacMillan Construction Company would not be given permission to pass picket lines.

Employees of the company would not be passing because the company was not working on the project at the start of the strike eight days ago and it is thus considered new construction, Mr. Hansen said.

The pulp and paper unions agreed with the building trade union to allow construction to proceed at the start of the strike to continue.

Only 10 or 12 men have been working on the wood room, Mr. Hansen, plant manager, said.

They were employed by contractor D. L. Rossman & Sons, Inc., of Victoria, to build the wood room.

Mr. Hansen said that the Ross-MacMillan Construction was to start another phase of the job.

ALD. EDELOW
... what about it?

Reporters' Faces Red

Somers All Right—One 'M' That Is

A couple of faces were definitely not because right now he was in the mayor's office. Possibly.

Two reporters with fingered faces, contemplating the possibility that either the RCMP or the press of British Columbia was making a horrible mistake, took up a new line of attack on the mayor's office. A cameraman arrived and filmed them.

They were employed by contractor D. L. Rossman & Sons, Inc., of Victoria, to build the wood room.

Nude's Allure Stalls Project

LUTON, England (Reuters)—The working class ruefully got down to work on a half-finished building here yesterday and the life class in an art school across the way got down to their in curtains privacy.

Oil Refiners Ask for More

ALBERTA (CP)—Refiners of Alberta crude oil are seeking more oil for December. It was indicated in nominations filed with the Alberta Oil and Gas Conservation Board Wednesday. The refiners are requesting 258,992 barrels daily, 9,374 more than the November figure but 21,136 fewer than the October amount.

Till Wednesday, the working class interest in what the life class was sketching all but halted progress on a rising new $3,000,000 building.

All because of a model called Adele. There she was in the flesh—in an art school window for all the construction gang to see.

The foremen started to wonder why their steel-girded structure—Luton's new College of Further Education—was all but halted in its skyward climb level with the life class window.

Like the foremen, model Adele Mavis at first was unaware she had become the object of concentrated attention of another class beside the one she was being paid to pose for.

Adele and the foremen found out about the same time. School principal C. L. Skinner and the foremen agreed to hang the heavy curtains that blocked the workers' view.

Said Skinner: "It wasn't so much that the model was embarrassed, but we got so many complaints from the foremen."

MICKEY ROONEY

... stop that strike

It has been said that all the good movies come at the same time, and that is certainly true in Victoria today.

Two excellent but vastly different movies opened yesterday, "Operation Mad Ball" at the Capitol and "Man of a Thousand Faces" at the Odeon.

and is every bit as funny as the best of them, "Mr. Roberts."

From the latter movie, Jack Lemmon heads a cast of soldiers in a camp in France, in late 1945, whose sole aim in life is to have a party for the nurses at a nearby hospital. The plot is how they get around camp adjutant Ernie Kovacs, a nasty man.

Lemmon, Kovacs in his movie debut, all the soldiers and the script writer are very good. But the biggest laughs come when Lemmon has to enlist the aid of a Le Havre-based master sergeant, Mickey Rooney, who really runs the army in Europe ("A strike in Antwerp! They can't do that!").

With "Mad Ball" is the color film documentary of the recent royal visit, "The Sceptre and the Mace," which is of interest particularly because of its description of parliamentary ceremony.

In "Man of a Thousand Faces," James Cagney does a fine job with a seemingly realistic biography of Lon Chaney, the original "horror" man of the movies. A well-rounded supporting cast includes Oscar winner Dorothy Malone and Jane Greer as his wives, Jim Backus as his press agent and Robert Evans the bullfighter of "Sun Also Rises" as Irving Thalberg.

'Radar' in Brain

I Can See Light!

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—"Oh, I can see the light."

It was in these words that a woman, blind for 18 years, described her reaction to a new electronic device, her surgeons said.

The woman, Miss Betty Corstorphine, 35, underwent a series of tests in Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, Los Angeles, last month using a crude "radar" set connected by wires to her brain.

Reached at her home here Wednesday, she said:

"I saw flashes, at one time a bright flash like an electric light bulb, and at another time a greyness as though a light had just gone out."

Dr. John C. Button said the test showed that brain cells did not atrophy like unused muscle cells but could be stimulated. Saying that the test "opens the door to the possibilities of electronic vision," he predicted that with adequate funds, medical science could refine the apparatus so that within five years almost all blind people could "see" by means of electrical stimulus of the vision centres.

"Eventually," he said, "I'm sure we'll get real sight."

Miss Corstorphine expressed a cautious optimism about the experiments.

"I went out there knowing, of course, that I was not going to get my sight back," she said. "I knew it was only a test, that much more research will have to go into it. But someday—we're hoping it's soon—there may be vision aids for the blind like there are hearing aids."

Miss Corstorphine, who volunteered for the tests begun last Oct. 28, has been blind since 1939 because of the pressure of an inoperable, benign tumor on her optic nerve.
